Rioter gets 17 months

With time served, man faces 13 and a half months in jail plus two years of probation

▶ A car burns during the June 15 Stanley Cup riot in Vancouver.

Ryan Dickinson was sentenced Thursday to 17 months in jail for his part in the Stanley Cup riot.

The 20-year-old Coquitlam resident, who was the first person to plead guilty following the June 15 melee, got 16 months for participating in a riot, minus three and a half months for time served.

B.C. provincial court Judge Malcolm MacLean added one more month for a breach of bail conditions from a previous charge.

In outlining his reasons for the sentence, MacLean said Dickinson's behaviour did not show he was just caught up in a momentary lapse of judgment and his actions were "persistent and deliberate."

"There are times when he could have walked away but did not," MacLean said, adding Dickinson's behaviour had no doubt encouraged others to participate in the destruction that night.

Crown prosecutors had asked for 15 to 18 months of jail time, while Dickinson's lawyer recommended a one-year sentence.

On Tuesday, the court was shown photos and videos of Dickinson taking part as a mob trashed two unmarked police cars on Nelson Street before throwing a mannequin and a newspaper box into the Black & Lee store window.

Dickinson will also serve two years of probation, during which he must attend counselling, abstain from possessing or consuming drugs or alcohol and seek and maintain employment.

Spokesperson Neil MacKenzie said the Crown was satisfied with the outcome since it was within the range of what prosecutors had been seeking.

Jail term 'bittersweet' for business owners

Charles Gauthier won't be celebrating the fact Ryan Dickinson will spend the next 13 months in jail for taking part in the Stanley Cup riot last June.

Instead, the executive director of the Downtown Vancouver Business Improvement Association says Dickinson's sentence — the first handed down to an accused rioter — is part of the "healing process" for the businesses that were ransacked, looted and destroyed.

"It's a good start," he said. "I'm not going to celebrate that someone is going to jail, but I think for some of our members it's bittersweet."

Vancouver police Chief Jim Chu praised Judge Malcolm MacLean for taking the case seriously.

"We're very happy with the sentence handed down in court," he said. "The sentence … is a victory for the victims and the citizens of Vancouver. The whole city was victimized by the carnage and mayhem inflicted by those rioters. The courts have clearly held this person accountable."

Chu isn't sure the sentence — 16 months for participating in a riot, with two years probation, plus another month for breaching bail conditions — will set a baseline for future penalties. He says jail terms will vary depending on the circumstances of the case.

To date, charges have been approved against 52 people. Charges against 125 suspected rioters have been recommended by police so far. MATT KIELTYKA

Officers and staff allegedly exchanged lewd images on work email

The "boys club" tag that has been dogging police in British Columbia is being thrown around once again.

Fifteen male employees of the Vancouver Police Department are under investigation for allegedly emailing each other pornography over work computers and email accounts.

Vancouver police Chief Jim Chu confirmed the investigation on Thursday, adding that the employees range from a civilian staff member all the way up to a high-ranking inspector within the force.

While none of the images downloaded onto VPD computers are illegal, Chu says the behaviour will not be tolerated and is a clear breach of department policies.

"I want all the Vancouver Police Department employees and officers to focus on fighting crime. I don't want them distracted by sending inappropriate emails out," Chu said. "They know better. Our policies are clear and when this happens, we'll hold them accountable."

David Eby, director of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, says the news was "disappointing" — especially after a wave of high-profile sexism and abuse accusations against the RCMP in recent months.

"This couldn't come at a worse time for the VPD. It certainly won't solve the issue of the 'boys club' within policing," Eby said.

The alleged emails were sent from January to September last year. The internal inquiry began in August, after the force stumbled on the email group while investigating an unrelated incident.

Chu says some discipline has already been dished out in the form of written reprimands, assignment transfers and suspensions for some of the employees.

Others will likely also be disciplined, and officers could face demotions or delays of any promotions for up to two years.

Avatar Grove gets full protection

A unique stand of old-growth cedars on Vancouver Island will be entirely protected from development or logging, but old-growth trees in other regions will be sacrificed.

Forests Minister Steve Thomson says the province will extend the old-growth management area around the Avatar Grove, 110 kilometres northwest of Victoria. He says the protected area covers just under 60 hectares surrounding the entire grove, which has become an eco-tourism attraction due to its fantastically shaped Western red cedars.

The grove falls within the tree-farm licence of B.C. forestry company Teal-Jones Group, and the forests ministry says the company must be compensated for losing its cutting rights there. The ministry says the boundaries of other old-growth management areas have been adjusted by removing 57 hectares.

Protection of Avatar Grove follows public consultations last fall that received 236 comments, only four of them against saving the region.

Judge permits evidence in Mountie case

OBSTRUCTION TRIAL. There was a victory for the Crown Thursday in the court case against a B.C. Mountie charged in a fatal accident in Delta in 2008. RCMP Cpl. Monty Robinson is accused of obstruction of justice in the collision, which left a motorcyclist dead. The defence wanted the court to strike the evidence of Delta police officer Sarah Swallow, who said Robinson told her that after the accident he went home and drank two vodka shots to calm his nerves. The defence argued Robinson wasn't notified of his right to a lawyer before he made the claim, but the judge disagreed.

In pursuit of happiness

UBC economist helping United Nations measure global happiness levels with World Happiness Report
He says data can help nations deliver policies that can improve citizens' well-being and life satisfaction

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS
@METRONEWS.CA

John Helliwell is in pursuit of happiness.

Helliwell, a University of B.C. economist and one of the leading minds in the field of happiness research, has been given the big task of measuring the current state of happiness around the world.

He was recently asked to help the United Nations on a World Happiness Report that will be presented at a special UN meeting on April 2 in New York City.

The meeting was a result of a resolution introduced by Bhutan and adopted by the UN in July of last year, which proposed happiness as a goal for all nations.

Helliwell says he, along with colleagues, had been made responsible for making the report and they will be drawing together various sources that measure global happiness.

"It's the first one since nobody has tried to do it … and this will explain what science has to say about it," Helliwell says, adding the data will help with the UN's efforts to improve life satisfaction with public policies and strategies.

"The primary objective is to get the countries themselves collecting this data in a systematic and large-scale way so they know not just what a national average is, but how happy people (in various demographic groups) are in various parts of the country," he adds.

"When they start rethinking and redesigning the way they deliver health care, education and so on, they think about well-being and they measure it before and after changes. That then helps them to find ways of doing more with making people happy, which is the purpose of these services in the first place."

Smile sources

University of B.C.'s John Helliwell and Dr. Joti Samra, host and psychologist on the Oprah Winfrey Network's Million Dollar Neighbourhood, talk about some of the most important discoveries in the field of happiness research and key indicators of life satisfaction.

1 It's not all about the money, money, money

"It's not huge amounts of wealth that makes us happy," Samra says. "We know that we need enough money to meet our basic needs and basic comforts in life. Beyond that, the amount of income that we have is not that strongly correlated with happiness."

2 Trust or bust

"As human beings, we are social creatures," Samra says. "The amount of good-quality social support we have makes us resilient to other stressors in life. Having a sense of trust, community and engagement in those that we work with is really key, (since) we spend more time at work and those that we work with than we may even with our family and friends. When those relationships are healthy and intact, that's really good for our overall quality of life and happiness."

3 The need to belong

Having a sense of belonging is another key indicator of happiness, Helliwell says. "(People) really like to feel at home," he says, adding that feelings of belonging in the neighbourhood or locally have much more impact than that at the national or provincial levels. "It's tightly tied up with how much you trust your neighbourhoods," he says. "If it's a place where everybody looks out for each other, then of course you can trust them and then you can feel you belong."

4 It's better to give than to receive

Studies show that people who give money away rather than use it on themselves often receive greater personal satisfaction, Helliwell says. Those who volunteer or engage in philanthropic efforts gain more than the recipients. He says that a recent study shows that cancer patients who counselled their peers received more benefits.

5 Free people are happy people

"We know that from a mental-health perspective, when we're in situations that we have control over, including our (life choices), and when there's some element of predictability in our life, that we are much more at ease and psychologically and emotionally in a better place," Samra says.

No face recognition to identify rioters

Ruling states police may not use software to identify suspected Stanley Cup rioters without a warrant

ICBC can't allow the police to use its facial-recognition software to catch Stanley Cup rioters — or any other suspect — without a court order, the province's privacy watchdog ruled Thursday.

While the Vancouver police declined the Insurance Corp. of B.C.'s offer to help with the riot investigation, Elizabeth Denham released a report that says the agency has allowed police to access its database in the past — a practice she concluded violates provincial privacy laws and raises important questions about the use of sensitive biometric data.

Soon after the riot, ICBC offered to help Vancouver police by using its facial-recognition software to match photographs of rioters with names in its database.

"It's not just somebody's name and their address. It's their image — it's themselves."
WATCHDOG ELIZABETH DENHAM

The corporation offered to run a photo of a rioter through its system and let police know whether there was a match. If there was, ICBC proposed police would then require a court order to see the results.

But Denham says even that violates privacy laws, which say public bodies can only use information about citizens for the purpose it was originally collected for.

In this case, Denham says ICBC collected photos for detecting and preventing driver's-licence fraud, which means it is prohibited from using them for any other purpose, including aiding law enforcement.

Denham says her office identified 15 instances in which ICBC received requests to use its facial-recognition software to identify a suspect.

In at least one of those cases, Denham's report says, ICBC handed over the possible identity of a suspect.

"They ran the information and disclosed it to the police without a subpoena or a court order," Denham said.

Denham also says ICBC hadn't adequately informed the public that it was using facial-recognition software internally and recommended the agency better communicate that to its customers.

ICBC spokesman Adam Grossman noted the agency had yet to provide any information to riot investigators, and he says all of Denham's recommendations will be adopted.

Denham says the use of what she described as biometric information should be treated with special care.

"The (biometric) information is our most sensitive type of information," she said.

"It's not just somebody's name and their address. It's their image — it's themselves. And in that case, the state should have very stringent rules and stringent controls about how that data can be used."

Man in Motion's inspiration

Canadian icon Rick Hansen urges others to explore new possibilities 25th Anniversary relay will reach B.C. mid-March

JENNIFER KWOK
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

Canadians should look to people in their community — not celebrities — for inspiration, Rick Hansen said on Thursday.

The Canadian icon spoke at the Vancouver Board of Trade event Thursday, sharing his stories of inspiration and success. One of the stories was about Terry Fox.

Hansen recalled basketball training in wheelchairs at Simon Fraser University and said Terry was not an extraordinary person but, rather, a Canadian with extraordinary determination.

"One time, the defence collapsed near Terry and accidentally knocked his wig off, shooting it into a corner," Hansen said. "He hopped over chairs, grabbed it and put on the wig."

▶ Rick Hansen speaks to the Vancouver Board of Trade at Fairmont Pacific Rim Hotel in Vancouver on Thursday.

The referee refused to let Fox wear his wig, because it was a "hazard." Fox threw it onto the side and never looked back. Hansen said what he takes from Fox is his spirit.

"It's a funny moment for us, an embarrassing moment for him," Hansen said. "Terry was a regular guy that I watched struggle, live life and stand strong."

Hansen said his definition of success is self-awareness and living a life based on your own values. He says that some of the biggest dreams in life can never happen unless you have the courage to try.

Hansen wheeled through 34 countries in 26 months to raise awareness for people with disabilities a quarter-century ago. The 25th Anniversary Rick Hansen relay that retraces Hansen's original route will reach B.C. on March 19 and will end its journey in Vancouver on May 22.

HUSKY QUARANTINED

Family dog kills baby near Calgary

A family dog has killed a newborn baby boy in a community just north of Calgary.

RCMP said the infant was attacked Wednesday morning inside the family's home in Airdrie.

The boy was taken to Alberta Children's Hospital in Calgary with traumatic injuries and died 12 hours later.

"It is a sad case all around," said RCMP Sgt. Patricia Neely.

"The investigation has been conducted by the RCMP and there is absolutely no indication of negligence on behalf of the family.... The pet has no previous history of aggression or violence and this was completely unexpected."

The dog, a husky, is being quarantined until the family and bylaw officers decide whether it should be destroyed.

Feds target 'bogus' refugees

New bill includes biometric ID, limits to appeals

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Immigration Minister Jason Kenney

The Conservative government is using its majority to once again overhaul the refugee system to reduce what it considers to be bogus claims.

Immigration Minister Jason Kenney tabled legislation in the House of Commons on Thursday that reverses some key concessions the Tories made to the opposition two years ago in order to pass the Balanced Refugee Reform Act through a minority Parliament.

This new legislation, called the Protecting Canada's Immigration System Act, more closely resembles the original refugee bill as tabled by the Tories, before any concessions.

But Kenney says a glut of refugee claims from the European Union has forced the government to adopt even tougher measures.

"We worked with the opposition in good faith and we ended up with a bill that was a huge improvement over the status quo," he said Thursday. "But we have a serious problem. We're facing a large wave of unfounded asylum claims coming from the European Union in particular. The only tool we have to address that now is the imposition of a visa. That hurts Canada's commercial, diplomatic interests. It hurts the tourism industry. We need other tools to address it."

Canada is close to inking a free-trade agreement with the European Union. The Czech Republic has threatened to hold up the deal if Canada does not get rid of a visa requirement it slapped on Czech citizens in 2009.

The new legislation would give the federal immigration minister final say over which countries are considered safe and which are not.

"Our generous asylum system has been abused by people making bogus refugee claims," Kenney said. "Our government is very concerned about the recent increase in refugee claims from democratic countries that respect human rights."

Appeals curbed

- Refugees from safe countries whose claims are rejected will no longer be permitted to appeal the decision to the Immigration and Refugee Board. They are allowed to appeal to the board under the current legislation.
- All rejected claimants can still appeal to the Federal Court, but they can be kicked out of the country while they wait for a ruling.

Ex-Degrassi actor mourned

▶ Neil Hope

Degrassi creator Linda Schuyler expressed condolences Thursday as word emerged that actor Neil Hope, who played Derek "Wheels" Wheeler on the long-running youth series, apparently died five years ago without any public announcement.

It wasn't clear why his death had not been reported previously, but a spokeswoman for Epitome Pictures, which produced the award-winning series, said castmates had lost track of the former star. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Would-be transplant patient gets her wish

Talk-show host Ellen DeGeneres granted would-be lung transplant patient Hélène Campbell's wish Thursday morning by talking about organ donation, but went a step further with a surprise interview via Skype from her set in Los Angeles.

Campbell was so surprised she had to ask her mom to increase her oxygen tank's flow to help her breathe.

The 20-year-old left her Barrhaven home in January to wait for a double lung transplant. She has idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis and only has 24 per cent lung capacity.

She started an organ donation awareness campaign last month through social media, and singer Justin Bieber was one of the first celebrities to support her by tweeting beadonor.ca to his 16.5 million Twitter followers.

DeGeneres, an organ donor herself, saw Campbell's YouTube video in which she asks the host to talk about organ donation on the show. DeGeneres did just that — and a bit more.

Campbell thought she was waiting to speak to a show producer when DeGeneres appeared on her computer screen.

"I was in shock, I was completely dumbfounded," she said after the broadcast. "We did it."

Campbell said her mom knew about the surprise, but kept it a secret.

"She said it was the hardest thing in her life not to tell me," said Campbell.

Although Campbell couldn't appear on the show, DeGeneres gave her tickets to the premiere of The Hunger Games film in Toronto.

She also invited Campbell and mother to appear on the show after she receives a transplant.

'Vikileaks' may have Commons link

The Twitter stunt that revealed sleazy details about Public Safety Minister Vic Toews' acrimonious divorce proceedings appears to have emanated from the House of Commons.

In an investigation, the Ottawa Citizen traced the Internet Protocol address attached to the Vikileaks30 Twitter account to a Commons computer.

DAVID VAN DYKE/ METRO ILLUSTRATION

The newspaper also discovered the IP address is attached to a House employee who edits Wikipedia articles "often giving them what appears to be a pro-NDP bias."

Vikileaks30's Twitter postings began in earnest Tuesday night, an uber-public response to the Internet surveillance legislation — Protecting Children from Internet Predators Act — tabled by Toews.

Tweets divulged Toews' alleged infidelities while married to Lorraine Fehr, whom he divorced in 2010.

Real estate crash haunts Spain

Economic downturn has left ghost towns in its wake across the country

PAUL WHITE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A thistle grows in front of apartment blocks in Sesena, Spain. What was supposed to be a vibrant mini-city has since turned into a ghost development due to Spain's struggling economy.

Towering apartment blocks, complete with swimming pools and playgrounds, loom over empty streets, weed-filled lots and gaping excavation pits. The lone bank in this mega-development, nicknamed "Manhattan," closed two years ago and most storefronts are bricked up.

Apartments galore are for sale here and prices are plunging.

More than 13,000 apartments were supposed to go up to create a mini-city for 30,000 people just 45 minutes outside of Madrid. But only 5,100 were built, many are uninhabited and regular Spaniards who bought them as investments are now competing to offload them for huge losses.

Spain's real estate crash and economic implosion have turned what was supposed to become a vibrant suburban paradise for young Spanish couples and their children into one of the most visible monuments of the country's boom gone bust. Such modern-day ghost towns have become a familiar part of the Spanish landscape, abandoned shells left to slowly decay.

The number of foreclosure proceedings skyrocketed during the economic crisis. Nearly 530,000 were granted by courts from 2008 through September of 2011, most to banks taking homes, housing developments and vast tracts of land for residential and commercial real estate projects that may never become reality.

The banks were ordered this month by the recently elected centre-right government to set aside billions of additional euros to cover these toxic real estate assets valued at $232 billion US just as Spain teeters on the edge of what could be a lengthy recession.

In Sesena and other ghost developments around Spain, some banks are already trying to unload finished apartments at discounts of up to 50 per cent of their original prices. But that's hurting untold numbers of Spaniards who invested savings and took out big loans to buy property they thought they'd be able to rent or sell for a higher price. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thai plot linked to other bombings: Police

In wake of incidents, Israel's foreign ministry says security has been stepped up for diplomatic staff abroad

Three Iranians detained after accidentally setting off explosives in Bangkok were planning to attack Israeli diplomats, Thailand's top policeman said Thursday in the first confirmation by local officials that the group was plotting attacks in Thailand.

Israel has strongly accused Iran of being behind the botched plot, a bombing in India and an attempted bombing in the former Soviet republic of Georgia this week, which Iran has denied.

Citing the similarity of bombs used in New Delhi and Tbilisi, national police chief Gen. Prewpan Dhamapong said that Thai authorities now "know for certain that (the target) was Israeli diplomats."

"Israel expects (the Security Council) to issue a clear condemnation today, without any further delay or equivocation."
RON PROSOR, ISRAEL'S AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED NATIONS

"This issue was about individuals and the targets were specific," he said. "This was something personal."

Israel has accused Iran of waging a covert campaign of state terror and has threatened military strikes on Iranian nuclear facilities. Iran has blamed the Jewish state for the recent killings of Iranian atomic scientists and has denied responsibility for all three bomb plots.

The explosion Monday in New Delhi tore through an Israeli diplomatic vehicle, wounding the driver and a diplomat's wife, and an attempt was foiled the same day in Georgia.

The plot in Bangkok was discovered when explosives in the men's rented house blew up by mistake Tuesday. Surveillance video showed the three men leaving their destroyed house just after the first blast.

'Underwear bomber' given life sentence

Defiantly declaring "a day of victory," a Nigerian man was given a mandatory life sentence Thursday for trying to blow up a packed jetliner with a bomb sewn into his underwear. People aboard the flight testified that the failed attack had disturbed their sleep and travels for more than two years.

▶ Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab

Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab was the same remorseless man who four months ago pleaded guilty to all charges related to Northwest Airlines Flight 253.

The 25-year-old, European-educated son of a wealthy banker, Abdulmutallab tried to set off the bomb minutes before the Amsterdam-to-Detroit flight landed.

Had the bomb not fizzled, nearly 300 people aboard the flight would probably have been killed.

Before Thursday's sentencing, four passengers and a crew member from the flight told U.S. District Judge Nancy Edmunds that they have struggled to live and travel normally since the incident on Christmas Day 2009.

During their remarks, Abdulmutallab appeared disinterested, rarely looking up from his seat just a few metres away.

Abdulmutallab "has never expressed doubt or regret or remorse about his mission," Edmunds said.

Life in prison is a "just punishment for what he has done," the judge said. "The defendant poses a significant ongoing threat to the safety of American citizens everywhere."

Gunmen storm Nigerian prison

Armed gunmen from a radical Islamist sect stormed a federal prison in Nigeria amid heavy gunfire and explosions, killing one guard and freeing 119 inmates in an assault marking its growing national ambitions, officials said Thursday.

The sect known as Boko Haram claimed it freed seven followers in the attack that happened just after 7 p.m. Wednesday in the town of Koton-Karifi, just south of Nigeria's capital Abuja. Though authorities declined to say the attack was the work of the group, it mirrored another massive prison break orchestrated by the sect in 2010.

The gunmen blasted through the prison's gate with a bomb and killed one guard in a firefight, officials said. Those inside the prison escaped in the fighting, though authorities had recaptured about 25 of them by late Thursday afternoon, local prison official Hadiza Aminu said.

The government said an investigation had begun into the attack.

"One does not really know why" the gunmen attacked, Nigeria Prisons Service spokesman Kayode Odeyemi said. "It might be that some of the armed robbers are trying to free the armed robbers there awaiting trial."

However, a spokesman using the nom de guerre Abul-Qaqa claimed the attack Thursday night in a conference call with journalists in Maiduguri, the sect's spiritual home in Nigeria's arid and dusty northeast.

Wednesday night's attack matched one Boko Haram launched in Bauchi state in September 2010 that freed about 700 inmates there. The sect spokesman said Thursday night attacks would continue until Nigeria's weak federal government releases all its detained members.

Weapons smuggling on the rise during Syrian uprising: Mosul police

LOCAL COORDINATION COMMITTEES IN SYRIA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ In this Wednesday citizen-journalism image provided by the Local Coordination Committees in Syria, anti-Syrian-regime activist Khaled Abu-Salah stands in front of flames and black smoke from a bombed oil pipeline in the Baba Amr neighbourhood in central Syria, which had supplied gasoline to the capital and southern regions.

The rifles are first taken apart and hidden in cigarette cartons and kerosene tanks. Younis al-Lehaibi and his sons then divide them into their trucks and head out to Iraq's vast, dusty border with Syria.

Their objective: to smuggle weapons to Syrian rebels who seek the overthrow of President Bashar Assad.

It's a turnaround from the height of the Iraqi war six years ago, when weapons and fighters would cross from Syria to aid fellow Sunnis in Iraq.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS:

▶ Iraqi smuggler Younis al-Lehaibi hides AK-47 parts.

Until a month ago, al-Lehaibi said, it wasn't worth the effort. There wasn't much profit in smuggling Kalashnikov rifles, known as AK-47s. The Syrian rebels had all the weapons they needed.

$1,000

An AK-47 usually sells for $200, but their newfound demand has encouraged dealers to raise the price to $700. Smuggler Younis al-Lehaibi makes a profit by charging $1,000.

The spike in demand likely reflects how Syria's uprising, as it approaches its first complete year, has transformed into an outright clash of forces as the opposition turns more to armed action.

In another dangerous turn, more foreign fighters, possibly linked to al-Qaida, are believed to be crossing from Iraq to join the uprising against Assad. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UN condemns Syrian regime

UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon accused the Syrian regime of committing "almost certain" crimes against humanity Thursday as activists reported fresh violence and the arrest of several prominent dissidents.

Speaking to reporters in Vienna, Ban demanded the Syrian regime stop using indiscriminate force against civilians caught up in fighting between government troops and President Bashar Assad's opponents.

"We see neighbourhoods shelled indiscriminately," Ban said.

Syrian activists said government forces attacked Daraa on Thursday, carrying out arrests and shooting randomly in the city where the uprising against Assad erupted 11 months ago. They also reported intense clashes between army defectors and government troops in the central province of Hama.

"Hospitals used as torture centres. Children as young as 10 years old jailed and abused. We see almost certain crimes against humanity."
UN SECRETARY GENERAL BAN KI-MOON

The push into Daraa followed sieges on the rebellious cities of Homs and Hama and appears to be part of an effort by the regime to extinguish major pockets of dissent.

The Local Coordination Committees, a group of activists, said dozens of people were killed throughout the country Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iranian ministry in U.S.'s bad book

The United States is slapping sanctions on Iran's ministry of intelligence and security, asserting that it supports global terrorism, commits human-rights abuses against Iranians and participates in ongoing repression in Syria.

The Treasury Department announced Thursday that it added the ministry to its list of specially designated global terrorists.

The step freezes any assets the group may have in U.S. jurisdictions, bars Americans from doing business with it and bans ministry employees from travel to the United States.

The effect of the sanctions will be largely symbolic as it is not known to have holdings in the U.S.

The announcement said the ministry had provided al-Qaida agents in Iran with identity cards and passports, and had given money and weapons to al-Qaida in Iraq. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No guarantee GM's 2012 will match historic 2011

Record profits could mean expansion in Canada if sales keep growing

PAUL SAKUMA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A 2011 Chevrolet Cruze is featured at a car dealership in San Jose, Calif. General Motors Co. said Thursday it made more money in 2011 than any year in its history.

General Motors earned its biggest profit ever in 2011, but signs are emerging that its momentum could slow.

Strong sales in the U.S. and China helped the carmaker turn a profit of $7.6 billion US, beating its old record of $6.7 billion in 1997 during the pickup-truck and SUV boom.

Yet the company lost ground in the fourth quarter. Its profit fell eight per cent and missed Wall Street expectations. Europe and South America reported losses. And sales growth in the U.S. slowed even as more Americans bought cars and trucks

Still, GM is a vastly different company than it was in the late 1990s. It's smaller, has less debt and its contract with the United Auto Workers is less costly. But it took a government bailout and bankruptcy protection in 2009 to cut its bloated costs. The company made record money last year even though U.S. sales were near historic lows of 12.8 million cars and trucks.

This year, GM expects to increase its revenue as global sales grow and it charges more for models. However, it will make less money as sales shift to cars from trucks. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plan for Greece not good enough: EU diplomat

A European diplomat says current plans to help Greece with its debt load would still leave the country with debt of 129 per cent of economic output in 2020.

That's far above the 120 per cent level that eurozone leaders in October said was the maximum that could be considered sustainable.

The diplomat says international debt inspectors estimate in a new report that Greece's promised austerity efforts, a 100-billion-euro debt relief from private investors and a 130-billion-euro bailout, fail to reduce the country's debt sufficiently. He says several options were being discussed to bring the debt closer to the 2020 target.

These include help from the European Central Bank, lower interest rates on bailout loans, and helping Greece with an upcoming 5.5-billion-euro interest payment to bondholders.

The diplomat was speaking on condition of anonymity because the figures are confidential. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minor leak keeps Enbridge pipelines offline

Two Enbridge Inc. pipelines were offline Thursday after the major crude shipper said it discovered a small leak in Michigan.

The spill of less than three barrels was found during planned maintenance-inspection and repair work to Line 5 on Wednesday, near the village of Sterling, Mich.

"The pipeline repair and cleanup began immediately," spokeswoman Lorraine Little said. Line 1, a 237,000 barrel-per-day line from Edmonton to Superior, has also been shut down due to a backup of crude at Superior.

"We will work with our shippers to assess the impact of the outage," said Little. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MSN focusing on the here and NOW

Microsoft is hooking up MSN.com with a hipper sidekick to broaden its appeal and stay on top of the Internet's hottest topics.

The trend-tracking service, called msnNOW, tunes into the buzz by sifting through millions of Internet searches and links circulating among the hordes on Facebook and Twitter. The chatter is then distilled into the equivalent of a digital water cooler — a place where people can go to keep in touch without taking up a lot of their time. After months of development, the new feature debuts Thursday at now.msn.com.

The service is aimed at older teens and young adults who are increasingly relying on smartphones and other mobile devices to remain plugged into what's being talked about. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Obama's popularity up with economy

President Barack Obama's approval ratings are keeping pace with the improving U.S. economy, helped as well by the growing turmoil in the Republican contest for the nomination to challenge him in November.

While the Republicans fiercely battle one another, the president was expected to collect more than $8 million US from fundraising events that took him from Los Angeles and San Francisco on Thursday to the Seattle area on Friday.

Obama took in more than $220 million in campaign contributions last year and is bolstering that funding base as the Republican presidential contest remains unsettled. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1 Pinterest.com: It's the next Facebook or Twitter. Quietly but suddenly, this invite-only virtual pinboard where you "organize and share things you love" has exploded in popularity. It's still technically in beta, but is already one of the Top 10 social networks. Before you know it "pin" and "repin" will become as common terms as "tweet" and "retweet." You can "Like" it if you like.

2 Purple squirrel: Since a Pennsylvania couple discovered a purple squirrel in their backyard, the story has gone nuts on the Internet and a @purplsqurl Twitter account and Purple Squirrel Facebook page were started. A purple squirrel? For real? In related news, I think I saw a green chipmunk in my backyard. And a red bear. And a sasquatch.

3 Dare to wear red: Giving more meaning to the colour red this month, the Stephen Lewis Foundation dares Canadians to wear red and raise money to turn the tide of HIV-AIDS in Africa. The three top fundraisers by Feb. 29th will get to walk the runway at Toronto Fashion Week in March. Get more info at daretowearlove.com.

4 Tweet on Whitney Houston: A teenager on Twitter broke the news of Whitney's death a full 45 minutes before the mainstream media. The tweet, from @AjaDiorNavy, read thusly: "omgg , my aunt tiffany who work for whitney houston just found whitney houston dead in the tub . such ashame & sad :-(" Further proof social media really has changed everything.

5 Linsanity: LeBron who? New York Knicks point guard Jeremy Lin has come out of nowhere to become one of the most exciting players in the NBA — and one of its biggest new brands. He has led the must-watch Knicks to seven straight wins, including a buzzer-beater in Toronto against the Raps this week. On Twitter, he's gained 200,000 followers in one week @jlin7. A sure sign he's made it.

6 What Makes You Happy: A magazine with one of the longest titles ever — What Makes You Happy — launched this month with comedian Rick Mercer on the cover. It will tackle "happy, inspiring, silly, important, useful and/or frivolous" articles addressing different aspects of happiness. If you don't read it, just listen to Don't Worry, Be Happy. Works like a charm.

7 Will & Kate Barbie dolls: To commemorate their one-year anniversary April 29th, Mattel announced this week it's releasing Will and Kate royal-wedding Barbie dolls. You can preorder the Barbie Collector Royal Wedding William and Catherine Doll Set on Amazon. I'm holding out for my Kim Kardashian and Reggie Bush dolls.

8 Justin Bieber: The Biebs made world headlines this week when he made a dying girl's wish come true. Six-year-old Avalanna Routh has a rare form of brain cancer and her dream was to meet Bieber, so he flew her and her parents to N.Y.C. on Monday for a private meeting where they hung out and played board games. Never say never.

Workers made a French castle with lemons and oranges during the 79th Lemon Festival in Menton, southern France, on Thursday. The theme for the festival, which involves over 300 workers and uses 145 tonnes of citrus fruit, is "Menton welcomes the Regions of France."

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Oscars 'crystallized'

Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin share their thoughts on Billy Crystal reprising his role as Oscar host ◐ And they place their bets on best picture

Richard: We talked about the Oscars a few weeks ago, but we didn't touch on Billy Crystal coming back as host. I loved the old Crystal shows, but really hope he finds a new fresh approach for this year. I'm not interested in seeing him do another opening montage where he inserts himself into the nominated footage. What do you, oh comedy guru, hope he does with the show?

Mark: Oh, Richard, you know he's gonna do it; this time in black and white, in flip-flops and silent. Those montage sequences are like a drug to him — his name is Crystal, after all. It'll be old and hoary, but at least there will be some laughs. Of course, Billy's getting so old he'll have to turn his hearing aid up extremely loud and the teleprompter will have to be incredibly close. Your prediction on Best Picture, Richard?

RC: The Artist was the most fun I had at the movies last year but I'm not sure that means it deserves a best picture win. I think it will take it because it has won all the guild awards, but in my heart it's between Moneyball and Tree of Life. What's your choice?

MB: My choice is The Descendants, a movie of great maturity and mid-tone emotion. I had considered it a shoo-in until recently, because I thought The Artist was original to the point of gimmickry. But now I think The Artist is going to take it. It's a movie I liked a lot, but it's not very subtle. As far as Tree of Life goes, I thought it was pretentious hooey. And I heard they used non-union dinosaurs.

RC: Pretentious hooey! I accept that the birth of the universe sequence separates the men from the film snobs, but I loved how evocative of childhood it was. It captured something deeply emotional, even spiritual, whereas The Artist simply entertained the eye. The Descendants, for me, was a so-so movie with nice performances. Perhaps if Clooney had been working opposite a dinosaur I might have enjoyed it more.

MB: Yeah, I know, Tree of Life certainly has its fans. The divisive film I loved was Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close. I guess the childhood depicted in that picture — melancholic, guilt-ridden, borderline Aspergers — was evocative of my own. But it doesn't stand a chance to win the Oscar, and I've made my inner peace with that.

The Secret World of Arrietty
Genre: Animation
Director: Hiromasa Yonebayashi
Stars: Bridgit Mendler, Amy Poehler, Will Arnett

Already a hit in Asia, The Secret World of Arietty makes its North American debut with a new voice cast — including Carol Burnett — but the gorgeous animation intact.

The story of a young ailing boy who discovers tiny people living beneath the floorboards of his house is gently-paced kid's entertainment. The story unfurls slowly, scenes take their time to develop and the animation is classic, not frenetic. Kung Fu Panda Part 2 this isn't. The Secret World of Arietty may be a tad on the slow side for kids over the age of 10, but for the younger ones it's a wildly imaginative introduction to anime and fantasy storytelling.

RICHARD CROUSE

This Means War
Genre: Comedy/Action
Director: McG
Stars: Reese Witherspoon, Chris Pine, Tom Hardy

Sure to be one of the most contrived films of the year, This Means War features two buddy CIA operatives (Chris Pine, Tom Hardy) competing for the same woman (Reese Witherspoon). In short, the romantic-actioner is Bridget Jones' Diary meets Mr. & Mrs. Smith — only its miles from being as watchable as either.

And as phony as the romance plays, the action doesn't add much lift to ease the pain. Full of lame set-ups and unbelievable situations (a government agent with a condo that would make Donald Trump jealous? Really?), this groaner doesn't hold an ounce of plausibility and concludes as disappointing as a box of rancid Valentines Day candy.

STEVE GOW

In Darkness
Genre: Animation
Director: Agnieszka Holland
Stars: Robert Wieckiewicz, Benno Fürmann

An Oscar-nominee for Best Foreign Language Film, great performances aid In Darkness to construct the factual tale of a thieving opportunist who risked lives to hide Jews in the filthy sewers of occupied-Poland during the Second World War. Although the structure of Holocaust survival stories have become, dare I say it, almost familiar on-screen by now, Agnieszka Holland still boils down the essence of humanity and shapes the horror to be palatable, suspenseful and deeply affecting long after the film's conclusion.

Stifler, in skates

Seann William Scott is known for his lug-head characters
But he has some high-brow tastes — with a frat boy twist, of course

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Seann William Scott is best known for playing Steve 'Stifmeister' Stifler in the American Pie series of movies. The character was a hard partying lug-head, who, according to the direct-to-DVD sequel Band Camp, became a porno director.

His specialty in films like Road Trip, Dude, Where's My Car? and The Dukes of Hazzard is playing hapless stoners and lug-heads so it may surprise you that his DVD player is currently hosting La Vie en Rose. That's right, the life story of singer Édith Piaf.

"That may be my favourite movie of all time," he says.

I tell him I once interviewed the movie's star Marion Cotillard.

"Is she hot?" he asks. "I have such a huge crush on her. She's got a boyfriend though. I went on the computer and looked up who she's dating. A serious boyfriend for a long time. Sucks."

That's the Seann William Scott audiences know and love. As an actor he usually finds the unexpected angle on a joke, and knows how to reel the viewer in.

We have a laugh before moving on to talk about his new film Goon. He plays a hockey enforcer even though he didn't grow up with the sport. "I'm more of a fan now," he says. "When I grew up in Minnesota I played baseball, football and basketball. So in the wintertime that's what I played, which is odd, because it's Minnesota. All my friends played hockey and I was always envious because all the girls liked the hockey players.

"Nobody came to the basketball games.

"Since the movie I have a greater appreciation of it now because it is so intense. I love hockey now. I think the relationship between the players is way cool.

"The guys are just closer and there is a sense of humour about it. Maybe it's a more manly sport than basketball … I'm sure a lot of basketball players won't appreciate that."

"All my friends played hockey and I was always envious because all the girls liked the hockey players."
SEANN WILLIAM SCOTT

On shooting in Winnipeg

How did Seann William Scott like filming just north of home?

"I expected it to be like Minnesota, but the girls were hotter in Winnipeg," he says. "They dress better and they're a little more hip. I was confused. Minnesota is just below. How'd they get so hip? I think they just eat better. They're not stuffing cheese curds down their throats."

Is the zombie apocalypse near?

Walking Dead star Andrew Lincoln says even his wife doesn't know the answer to the show's big mystery

Andrew Lincoln, who stars as Sheriff Rick Grimes in The Walking Dead, says he loves a secret.

That's partly why Lincoln has told no one the answer to what's become the biggest mystery of the AMC zombie drama: What scientist Dr. Jenner whispered to Rick in the season one finale.

"Not even my wife knows what he whispered to me," Lincoln said in an interview Wednesday.

Lincoln said that in keeping the secret he feels he is being true to his character in the show.

"He chooses not to tell people so why would I tell," Lincoln said of the sheriff.

What was said has only been heard by a handful of people, and the mystery has become the object of intense scrutiny by fans.

Lincoln said he realized just how curious people were when a show editor revealed he had scrolled through hours of show footage and listened in on radio traffic to find the only two takes where the brief remarks were audible. The cast says the contents of the conversation will be revealed this season.

Lincoln, who says the comments are "pivotal" for Rick, hints that the message was not good news.

"This is a scientist who seemingly held all the cards to what this epidemic is about and I do think, you know, you would imagine he would have something of value to say on that matter," Lincoln said. "Well, he chose to kill himself."

The actor also said that Rick and his ragged group of survivors will likely leave the farm where they've taken refuge this season.

"Something happens and they realize very quickly that the farm is not as secure as they may think," he said.

The series continues Sunday at 9 p.m. Eastern. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Enter Gervais... as a dolphin

The curious case of great movies on TV

YOU MIGHT ACTUALLY TURN OFF NETFLIX. If you're in the mood for a movie Saturday night, there's no good reason to get off your couch. For those seeking blockbuster thrills, try the slick rebooted version of Star Trek, airing on Showcase, or the Academy Award-winning 2008 Batman flick The Dark Knight, on Peachtree TV. If it's Oscar-certified prestige pictures you're after, The Curious Case of Benjamin Button airs on Bravo while 1995's Braveheart is on AMC. Finally, those in search of lighter fare might enjoy The School of Rock on GameTV or the Jennifer Garner comedy 13 Going on 30, airing on MuchMusic.

A new funnyman

SNL WRITER. The title of John Mulaney's stand-up comedy special, New in Town, is apt given that few people probably know who he is (even though the name actually refers to a hilarious anecdote). But comedy fans would do well to check out the Saturday Night Live writer's first special, airing Saturday, in which he cleverly mines comic gold from a wide range of seemingly mundane topics, whether he's talking about Home Alone 2 or the simple joy of doing nothing. Ay, caramba! Simpsons mark another milestone

500th episode of Simpsons to air Sunday on Global

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

It's hard to believe that we've been hearing Bart Simpson say "Eat my shorts" since 1989, but the world will be graced with the 500th episode of The Simpsons this Sunday on Global.

The episode, titled At Long Last Leave, will find the Simpsons driven out of their beloved hometown of Springfield when their fellow neighbours finally give them the boot.

The Simpsons join a community from the other side of the tracks and make an unsuccessful attempt to return to Springfield.

Look for a cameo from Wikileaks founder Julian Assange, as himself. A special feature song by Alison Krauss will also be included.

‘I promise I won’t beat you’

Chris Brown has an awful new pick-up line, according to Us Weekly

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Here’s the thing about Chris Brown and The Word: Yes, he brutally beat his then-girlfriend Rihanna in 2009. But the man served the sentence our judicial system thought was fair and so he should be allowed to get on with his life and music without a stupid gossip columnist dredging it up all the time.

My prerogative is that we all know he’s a cowardly woman beater. Do with that information what you will.

Except the idiot continues to open his big mouth and make jokes about domestic violence and so, sorry, I can’t drop it.

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

▶ Chris Brown

According to Us Weekly, Brown has a totally romantic new pick-up line. A woman tells the magazine that Brown approached her on Feb. 10 at the Grammy gift lounge to ask for her number.

“Can I get your number? I promise I won’t beat you,” the woman said Brown told her.

“He and his friends laughed, then one yelled, ‘That’s his new line!’” she said. “I wanted to throw up.”

There are many ways I would like to respond to this stupid, hurtful and awful running joke of Brown’s but I don’t have the space. I’ll just say: It is my sincere hope that one day Chris Brown has a daughter and maybe, just maybe, he will feel sick at the thought of any man laying a hand on her. And then he will finally realize just what a terrible thing he did in his past and will finally know that making flippant asides about beating women is not OK.

But somehow, even then, I don’t think he’ll get it.

Angelina gets death threats

Angelina Jolie and the actors who star in her directorial debut, In the Land of Blood and Honey, have been receiving death threats over the film’s content, according to The Guardian.

“There were things sent to me, there were things posted online,” Jolie says. “The cast have never complained to me about these threats but I’ve heard through other people it was happening. One of them did have their windows smashed in on their cars and someone else had an issue when their phone was hacked and emails were sent out saying they were from them and saying they had been hurt.”

Just what was Whitney on?

In the investigation into what exactly caused Whitney Houston’s death, investigators are reportedly interviewing the late singer’s doctors about what sort of medications had been prescribed, according to the Associated Press.

“We’ve already contacted a number of doctors with requests for records,” a coroner’s official confirms, adding that such a move is common in investigations such as this one.

The move brings to mind the investigation into Michael Jackson’s death, which resulted in his doctor, Conrad Murray, being convicted on manslaughter charges.

Seal takes the ring

The reality of wife Heidi Klum’s divorce filing must be starting to set in for Seal, as the singer was spotted not wearing his wedding ring for the first time, according to Us Weekly.

Seal arrived in Australia this week without the band on his finger.

He’d been wearing it defiantly after Klum’s separation announcement last month.

“Just because we have decided to separate doesn’t necessarily mean you take off your ring and you’re no longer connected to that person,” Seal told Ellen DeGeneres in an interview at the time.

You have to love a celebration that can combine beads, boobs and beverages, and still stay classy. OK, while Mardi Gras may not be the textbook example of class, it certainly is a world-renowned party.

Many revellers wandering the streets of New Orleans during the festivities will be enjoying a Hurricane — the city's hallmark cocktail.

Invented in the 1940s by French Quarter bar owner Pat O'Brien, it's a mix of rum and fruit juices served in a glass resembling a hurricane lamp.

The recipe is simple to make:

- 1 oz white rum
- 1 oz dark rum
- 2 oz passion fruit juice
- 1 oz orange juice
- ½ oz fresh lime juice
- 1 tbsp simple syrup
- 1 tbsp grenadine
- 1 orange slice & cherry

Shake all the ingredients together with ice and strain into an ice-filled glass. Garnish with the cherry and orange slice.

My alternative version adds half an ounce of Bacardi 151° Overproof Amber Rum ($34.99 - $44.95) to the mix. It kicks the drink into overdrive. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Beads, booze and jambalaya

New Orleans' Mardi Gras celebrations take place on Tuesday If you can't get there, enjoy a taste from home with this Southern favourite

This bowl full of colour and flavour is made even better with the addition of catfish.

The jambalaya should be thick. If it's too thin, simmer it uncovered until some liquid evaporates.

U.S. FARM-RAISED CATFISH

The recipe serves six to eight people.

Preparation:

1 In a Dutch oven or a wide saucepan heat oil over medium heat. Add sausage and cook until lightly browned. Add ham, onion, celery, green pepper and garlic, cook, stirring for about 8 to 10 minutes.

2 Stir in broth, tomatoes, herbs and hot pepper sauce. Bring to boil. Add rice. Cover and simmer, 15 minutes or until rice is partially cooked. Stir in catfish pieces and bring back to simmer. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork and rice is tender. Remove from heat; cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Add salt to taste before serving.

U.S. FARM-RAISED CATFISH

Ingredients:

- 1 tbsp (15 mL) olive oil
- ½ lb (250 g) mild or hot Italian sausage, cut into 1/2-inch (1-cm) pieces
- ½ lb (250 g) smoked ham or kielbasa, cut into 1-inch (2.5-cm) pieces
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 celery stalk, chopped
- 1 large green bell pepper, chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 4 cups (1L) low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 can (28 oz/796 mL) diced tomatoes
- 1 ½ tsp (7 mL) thyme
- ½ tsp (2 mL) basil leaves
- 1 tsp (5 mL) each dried oregano leaves and hot pepper sauce
- 1 ½ cups (375 mL) uncooked long-grain rice
- 2 lbs (1 kg) Catfish fillets, cut into pieces about 1 ½ - inches (3.5-cm)
- Salt to taste

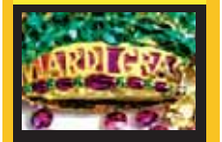
More than beads



After Carnival season wraps, many New Orleans locals give up their favourite foods for Lent. That makes Mardi Gras a great time to consume everything from gumbo and fired chicken to crawfish and pork chops, topped with King Cake and washed down with beer.

Scottish international set to call Vancouver his MLS home ◗ Won't join club until July

MATT KIELTYKA
@METRONEWS.CA

SCOTT HEPPELL/THE CANADIAN PRESS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

▶ Barry Robson celebrates a goal in January with Middlesbrough in Sunderland, England. The Whitecaps signed the Scottish international Thursday.

There is no doubt the Vancouver Whitecaps go into their second season in Major League Soccer as a much-improved side on paper.

The likes of prolific MLS goal-scorer Sebastien Le Toux and former Korean co-captain Lee Young-pyo have raised the standard and pedigree throughout the squad.

But even then, one piece remained missing: An experienced central midfielder able to dictate the pace of the game and contribute both offensively and defensively.

Manager Martin Rennie addressed that hole in a big way on Thursday, announcing the signing of 33-year-old Scottish international Barry Robson as the club's newest designated player.

Currently with Middlesbrough in England's second division, Robson is known as a talented and industrious midfielder who has notched 98 goals in 492 career matches with Inverness, Forfar Athletic, Dundee United, Celtic and the aforementioned Middlesbrough.

He has also made 16 international appearances for Scotland.

Robson won't join up with the Whitecaps until July, as he tries to help his current club win promotion to the English Premier League.

Middlesbrough currently sits eighth in the Championship, seven points off league leaders West Ham United.

Robson has racked up eight goals and four assists in 26 appearances for Middlesbrough this season.

Rennie expressed surprise that he was able to lure Robson, a "long-shot" target, to the West Coast of Canada but wasn't complaining on a conference call Thursday.

"It was always my first choice. I think it's a great place to come and play. The league is rising and getting better all the time."
BARRY ROBSON ON JOINING THE VANCOUVER WHITECAPS

For his part, Robson said signing in Vancouver was a "no-brainer" despite offers on the table from Middlesbrough and other European clubs.

"It's been something that's been on my mind for a while," said Robson. "As soon as I got the offer from Martin and (assistant coach Paul Ritchie), it was a no-brainer for me."

Robson and Ritchie played together at Dundee United and have remained close friends over the years.

Robson, naturally left-footed, said he can play anywhere along the midfield and Rennie is keeping an open mind about how to use his new weapon.

"It's a good thing for us. We'll see exactly where Barry will fit it," Rennie said. "The good thing is his versatility. We're pleased to have him."

The Vancouver Whitecaps open their 2012 MLS campaign at home March 10 against the Montreal Impact.

Sports in brief

Christopher Hansen is making a $290-million US proposal to his hometown that could be the impetus for a new sports arena that could bring the NBA and NHL to Seattle.

All he needs is city and county approval equaling $200 million and the two franchises to make it a reality.

Hansen, a hedge-fund manager based in San Francisco and a Seattle native, submitted a proposal to the city on Thursday that calls for $290 million in private investment toward the construction of a new arena that would cost between $450 and $500 million. Hansen and his investment group would also be responsible for the purchase of an NBA franchise and finding a partner interested in bringing an NHL franchise to Seattle as well.

Brani, I love you more than anything in the worl! Be my wife and let's be happy! TONI

Dear Chris, you made my life brighter. We used to chat in the stairs, we used to laugh together, drink wine together, lie on your bed and talk all night long, can't stop thinking about you :(I know you had a crush on this other girl (I told you I think she's a total loser...anyways...) and I'm super shy, so I didn't make any move or didn't express my feelings so far...but now I haven't heard from you since you're back from your lil trip. Whatever happens between us, I just want to tell you I love you. YOUR LONG TIME FAN

To my pet, I'm eagerly to see u at terminal and main at 11am i'll be there untill 1230.come to see me. MCDONALD
